CLINKS

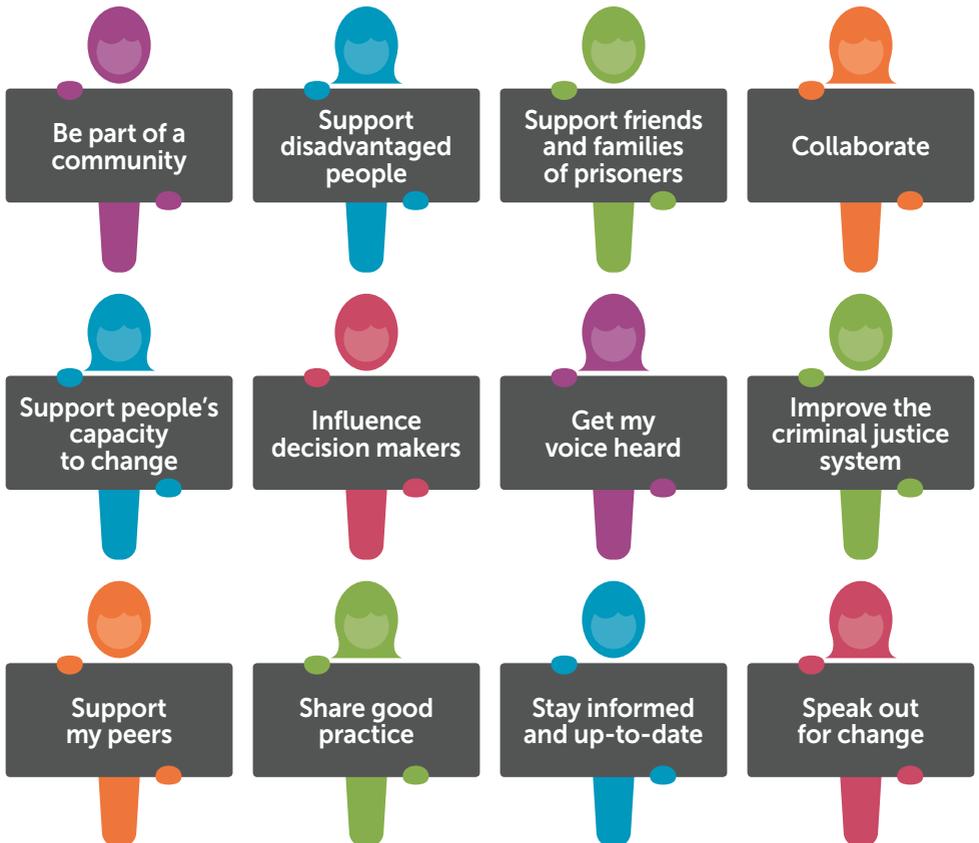

supporting voluntary organisations that work with offenders and their families

Do you work with people affected by the criminal justice system or their families?

Do you support people in the criminal justice system to transform their lives?

Why join Clinks?

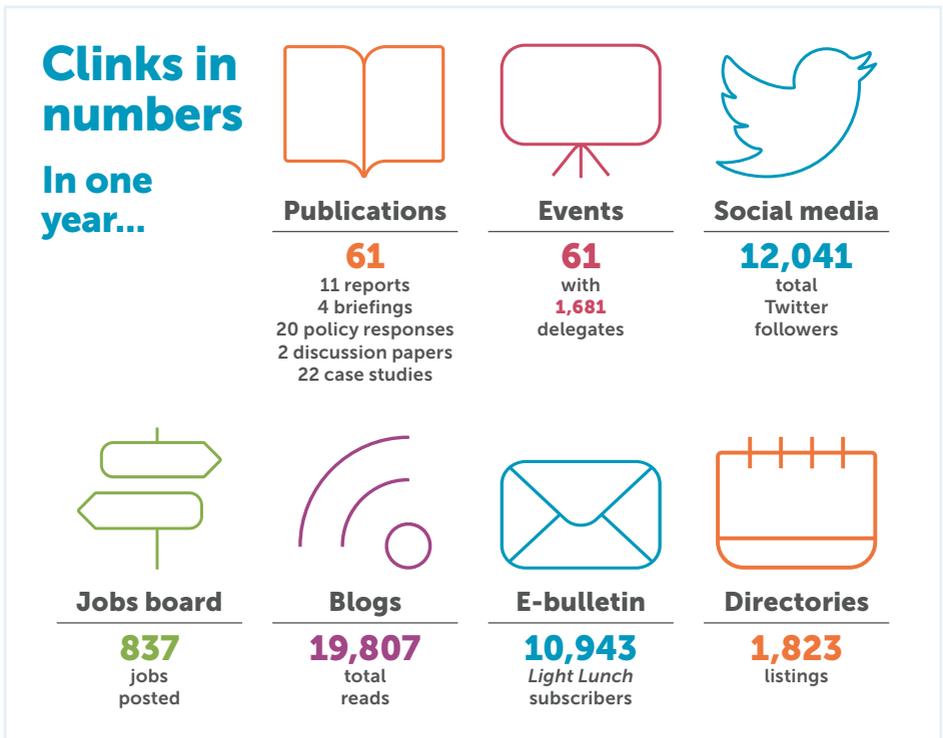

Clinks supports voluntary organisations working in the criminal justice system in England and Wales.

Our vision is of a vibrant, independent and resilient voluntary sector which enables people to transform their lives.

Clinks membership offers you a voice to influence change, practical assistance to be effective and resilient, and support from a community of like-minded professionals.

Join our network of over 500 voluntary organisation members, including the largest providers as well as unstaffed community groups. Our communications network reaches over 15,000 contacts with an interest in the voluntary sector working in the criminal justice system.

Be heard

Clinks provides a collective voice for voluntary organisations working in criminal justice.

We have an ongoing dialogue with our members who share with us their experiences and views. We make evidence-based recommendations for change.

Influence decision makers

We respond to government and influential stakeholders. We meet regularly with the Ministry of Justice, Cabinet Office and the Home Office; submit responses and represent members on influential bodies.

Stay informed and up-to-date

Clinks provides concise, targeted information, so you can stay up-to-date quickly and easily. Our e-bulletins deliver criminal justice news, events, resources and guidance. We also publish specialist e-bulletins covering criminal justice policy and offender health news.

Share good practice

We collate our members' expertise, identify and share key lessons and knowledge. We celebrate our members' successes and highlight their work in case studies.

Be effective and resilient

We advise, support and signpost to sources of further information, enabling you to provide the best opportunities for your staff and service users.

- Free, unlimited access to a funding directory
- Discounted training and events which inform, engage and promote discussion on topical issues
- Advertise your job vacancies on our popular jobs board.

Network

Clinks brokers partnerships and develops networks. You can identify potential partners, consultants, mentoring support and offender services through our online directories.

Share your news with our extensive communications network, which reaches over 15,000 people working in criminal justice, through our e-bulletins and social media activity.

Share experiences and problem solve with like-minded professionals at our events, and through our specialist networks for service user involvement managers, women's organisations, and those that work with the arts – through our National Criminal Justice Arts Alliance.

A word from our members...

“Clinks is hugely valuable, creating consistent voice that can have more impact on politicians or decision-makers, and stakeholders on policy.”

Langley House Trust

“Clinks gives us a real insight into what is going on in the criminal justice system and that’s really helpful to us to have that information available.”

Prisoners Abroad

“The most important thing that Clinks provides to small voluntary organisations, like ourselves, is the voice.”

Lincolnshire Action Trust

“Clinks brings everybody together under the umbrella and provides events and training. It really helps us feel part of a wider community.”

Shannon Trust
